THE PRESIDENT'S GUESTS.

Second State Dinner-Distinguished People

Present. WASHINGTON, January 19 .- The second of the series of state dinners was given by the president tonight to members of the diplomatic corps. The public parlors and state dining room were, as usual, beautifully adorned with profusion of potted plants, ferns, and choice cut flowers, roses predominating. The Marine band was stationed in the vestibule, and filled the house with music. The long sides of the dining table, instead of forming a straight line, as usual, were curved inward so as to form arcs of great circles, this arrangement allowing a greater number of guests to be seated, Covers were laid for 49 persons.

The president escorted Baroness Fava to the dining table, and Mrs. Cleveland was escorted y Minister Preston, of Hayti, dean of the diplomatic corps. The other guests present were the British minister, Mrs. Romero; the French minister, minister of Sweden and Norway, Mine. DeGuzman; Chinese minister, minister of Colombia, Mrs. Sherman; the Mexican minister, Russian minister, Mrs. DeGana; Argentine minister, Spanish minister, Lady Tupper; Italian minister, minister of Switzerland, Mrs. Carter; Netherlands minister, Chilian minister, Miss West; the secretary of state, Belgian minister, Mme. How a Double Wedding Was Interfered With.

AN ARKANSAS LAND LINE RIOT In Which Knives Were Brought Out, and the Grooms Placed Out of Repair-One Dead, the Other Dying.

LITTLE ROCK, January 19.—[Special.]—The news of a terrible tragedy in Fulton county, this state, which resulted in the death of two men, reached this place today. W. N. Baker and Robert Heitt were both engaged to be married, and they had arranged to have a double wedding. Before the event took place, however, Baker suggested that they have their farms surveyed.

The idea suited Heltt, and Baker accordingy went to Conway, a few miles distant, to se-ure the services of County Surveyor Dicknson. He returned home in the evening, accompanied by the surveyor. The next morncompanied by the surveyor. The next moni-ing Mr. Dickinson after completing his work-found that the line separating the two farms was about 200 feet from the place where it was supposed to be on Heitt's land.

A dispute arose between the fathers of the wo young men, and old man Heitt finally declared that his son never should marry Baker's daughter, nor his daughter Baker's son. At this Baker became furious, and drawing a knife rushed at Heitt. The latter also drew a knife, and before any one could interfere they had stabbed each other nearly to death. Heitt may live, but no hope is entertained for Baker's recovery.

THE JUDGE WAS CUTE. But the Comptroller-General Grew Suspicious. NASHVILLE, Tenn., January 19 .- [Special.] Comptroller Pickard has instituted an investi-gation into the management of the Montgomery county jail and workhouse, which will possibly attract much attention. For several months past Mr. Tronsdale, who examines the bills of costs and bills for jail fees sent to the comp-troller's office, has remarked upon the size of those forwarded from Montgomery county. He called Comptroller Pickard's attention to the matter, and the comptroller at once instituted some inquiries. He has pressed the investigation far enough to justify his refusal to pay any more jail fees from that county until the ourt passes upon certain questions raised by the following state of facts: Hon. W. C. Tyler is judge of the criminal court of Montgomery county, and also judge of the county court. The jail is managed, not by the sheriff, but by three commissioners appointed by the county court. The jailer is paid a salary, instead of by fees, as is usual, paid a salary, instead of by fees, as is usual, and the fees paid to the jail go into the county treasury. Judge Tyler, it is said, manages the county's affairs most admirably, but Comptroller Pickard has become convinced that the result of this management is sometimes to the injury of the state. In order to see if this be so, the comptroller has refused to pay the last a bill approved by Judge Tyler, and will await suit for it. If no suit is brought by Judge Tyler, the comptroller will bring suit to recover all the fees heretofore paid illegally to that county.

the fees heretofore paid, illegally to that county.

Mr. Pickard explained that, from what he had been able to learn from gentlemen living there, the legitimate jail fees have been increased by the following method: In many cases where a jury renders a verdict in the criminal court, convicting a prisoner, and fixing his sentence at a year or more in the state prison, the judge commutes the sentence to a term of months in the county jail, or county workhouse, and the state is charged forty cents per day for keeping him there although when sent to the work house he labors for the county. In one case, it is reported, a man's punishment was fixed by the jury at three years in the penitontiary. The judge of the criminal court suspended the sentence and kept the man in jail until the three years had expired, and then had the case dismissed. The comptroller holds that all these proceedings were illegal, and the state should not have paid the jail fees. Comptroller Pickard has employed an agent to thoroughly investigate the matter, and it will be brought before the court unless Montgomery county chooses to refund such fees as it is claimed have been illegally collected from the state.

Train Robbers Make an Unsuccessful Attempt to Rifle an Express Car.

tempt to Rifle an Express Car.

St. Louis, January 19.—Train robbers were foiled last night in an attempt to rob an express train on the Webash Western road at Cooley's Lake; twenty-four miles east of Kansas City. The county officials had been warned of the intended robbery, and they sent an armed posse on a train and had another posse concealed in the woods close to Cooley's Lake. The robbers' programme was carried out all right up to a certain point. The train was stopped by a red light and three men armed with rifles covered the engineer, and ordered him to dismount. He did so, and as he reached the ground a part of the posse collected in the train and gave the robbers a volley. Others on the train came up, and so did those in the woods. The robbers returned the fire from repeating rifles, but did no damage. They ran for cover, firing when pursuit became too close.

A report has been received that two robbers have been captured and one killed. They are known to be farmers living in the neighborhood of Missouri City.

Telegrams to General Manager Hays, from Division Superintendent McGee, say that all of the would-be robbers have been captured. Three of them were overtaken by the posse, and Barney Sweeney, the leader, who stopped the train and received a heavy load of shot in the breast from the gun of a man concealed in the engine cab, was found in the woods where he had crawled after being wounded.

The plot was given away by one of the gang, named King, who told Arnold, the station agent at Missouri City, what was going on Arnold in turn informed the sherin, and the latter officer immediately organized a posse. Arnold was one of the posse, and it was he who shot the leader from the cab. King remained with the men and signaled the train to stop, but took no other part in the affair. Sweeney is said to be dangerously injured. He is a well known character of the rough kind, and was charged with an attempt to blackmail General Manager Talmage two or three years ago.

Herrible Double Crime Committed in

A Horrible Double Crime Committed in Montgomery.

Montgomery, Ala., January 19.—[Special.] At ten o'clock this morning Mary Browden, colored, called at the house of Edna Wads, an old negro woman known throughout the city as "Aunt Edna," who lived alone on the outskirts of the city. She was horrified to find her lying on the floor near the fireplace dead and horribly burned. The coroner was at once notified, and proceeded to an investigation. The news spread rapidly. An immense mob o'negroes from the surrounding settlement gathered about the house. An examination showed that the old woman had been killed, and then her clothing was set on fire. It was known that she had a couple of hundred dollars, which she kept about the house, and it is supposed this was a temptation to the double crime. There is no clue as yet to the perpetrators, but officers are on the search. The negroes, who had a high regard for Edua, were greatly excited, and will help the officers to discover the criminals.

THE TERRY MARAUDERS.

OZARK, Mo., January 19 .- [Special. j-News

War on the Arkansas and Missouri Border.

from the Stone county Terry war, now transferred to the Arkansas border, reached here today from Galena. After the bloody combat in Stone county, about six weeks ago, between the Terrys and their Missouri enemics, the former retreated to Arkansas, and there, reinforced by their clannish allies, stubbornly deforced by their clannish allies, stubbornly de-fied the authorities, preventing any ar-rests being made. A vigilance com-mittee had been organized in Stone county to rid the county of the Terrys and their outlaw adherents. The committee has been strengthened by a similar organization in Arkansas, organized in the vicinity of the Terrys' new stronghold. Some time ago this interstate vigilance committee ordered the Terrys and their friends to leave the country in so many days, specified in the warning. Instead of leaving the Terrys procured twenty-five new Winchester rifles and fortified themselves at Boone, near the Arkansasiline, south of Stone county. The Terry faction is said to number thirty-five fighting men, all armed with Winchester rifles and revolvers, while with Winchester lines and revolvers, which winchester lines a war footing of 105, likewise well equipped for bloody work. The news from Galena indicates that a bloody battle is imminent, as the vigitance organization was preparing to attack the Terry party in their fortification, and swear-ing ruthless vengeance against the whole clan. Should the state authorities not interfere and arrest these varieties are arrest these warlike movements on the Arkansas border, the late series of homicides in Stone county may soon be overshadowed by one of the most deadly conflicts ever known in the

The Feud Between the Hatfields and McCoys.
CHARLESTON, W. Va., January 10.-Infornation reaches here from Oceana, Wyoming county, that another bloody chapter in the McCoy-Hatfield feud was enacted Saturday night last, in which the lives of five McCoys were sacrificed. It will be recalled that about the beginning of the new year the feud, which had been stilled for some months, broke out again between the two families in which the Hatfields were worsted. After the funeral of the victims, Hatfield proceeded to annihilate the family of Randall McCoy. They surrounded his house across the Kentucky line, and setting fire to it drove McCoy, wife, son and daughter, like sheep into the shambles, to be ruthlessly slaughtered. Randall McCoy escaped to the woods. This was followed by the array in West Virginia, recently described, in which three of the Hatfield party were killed in battle in the woods. All the details that have yet been received of Saturday night's massacre are simply that the Hatfield gang made a raid on the house of Simon McCoy, brother of Randall. The McCoys were completely surprised. Mrs. McCoy was tied to a tree and shot to death. The eldest son was then tied up and riddled with bullets. Sim McCoy barricaded his barroom and made a weak defense of his home against great odds.

Finally the Hatfields came to the house and McCoy and his two youngest children were burned to death.

Definite reports of the loss of cattle during the recent blizzard are slowly coming in, although every ranchman admits a heavy loss. Sheep men report the loss of from two to twelve head out of every flock. The Brazos and Colorado rivers are frozen solid, something never known before. The failure of crops last year reduced the supply of feed for cattle, so that during the cold spell the herds were without water or food. Reports from the grazing district of the state say that cattle on the sonthwestern ranges weathered the great blizzard in very good shape. The loss was confined entirely to the sickly and poorly fed stock. A great many large herds, however, were frost-bitten about the legs, and since the weather has moderated their legs have swollen to almost twice the natural size.

How the Two Men Were Thrown Togethe A Lively Little Scrimmage in Which Scarborough Gets Shot.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., January 19.—[Special.]
Detective Hawk Scarborough was shot and severely wounded about ten o'clock this morning, by Tom Ellis, editor of the Hornet. The shooting was pronounced by eye-witnesses an improved and conveyling attempt to kill. unprovoked and cowardly attempt to kill The detective was employed at the Casino theater as special officer, and during the even-ing had some words with Bud Haley, a barkeeper, who was drunk and raising a ance in the house. About one o'clock Haley, Ellis, and other parties, all drunk, found Scarborough alone in a saloon. Haley demanded a retraction of something Scarborough had said, which he refused to make, and knocked Haley down. They were separated, and Haley and his friends went out on the sidewalk. Ellis asked Haley for a pistol, and said he would go back and kill Scarborough. He got a pistol and the entire party went back. Haley struck the detective and knocked him up against a stove. Scarborough drew a derringer and fired at Haley, missing him. In the mean time, Ellis had got behind Scarborough, and without a word of warning, shot him three times in the back. He then threw down the oistol and fled, but was captured before daylight. Scarborough's wounds are very painful, but will hardly prove fatal. Ellis was today re-leased on a $2,000 bond. Scarborough had not fully recovered from wounds received in | be effected. the desperate fight with Dick Buckalew, the outlaw, several weeks ago.

His Career in Atlanta. Hawk Scarborough is well known in Atlanta and numbers his friends by the hundred. A trint, however, resulted in his favor, and then Scarborough came to Atlanta. During the cotton exposition he was a member of the force on the grounds, and after the show was placed on the cly force. He seen made a reputation as a patroliman and was promoted to a position on the mounted force. One day in '85, however. Scarborough drank too much, and in making an arrest on Green's Ferry avenue shot at the prisoner, who was trying to get away. The ball struck a small child, and the shooting created a sensation. Public feeling was against Scarborough, and he resigned his position on the police force. In a short time he secured a stuation with the Richmond and Danville railroad, but during his connection with the road was indicted and tried for shooting the child. He managed to get out by the liberal use of money. Soon after the trial he went to the Union depot as watehman. He did not like the place and eighteen mouths ago went to Biraniucham, where he made a reputation as a detective. Only a few months ago he with another man as tempted to arrest Buck alew, an outlaw, in Alabams, and Scarborough was desperately wounded. The Pioneer Press learns from Wahpeton, Dakota, that the storm which began at ten o'clock last night is raging furiously tonight. Trains on the Milwaukee road have been abandoned. The Northern Pacific branch is closed. Manitoba trains are two and one-half hours behind. The wind is N., N. W., and the temperature thirty-three below.

A Pierre, Dakota, special says trains have been ordered to wait the abatement of the storm. The signal officer at Fort Sully reports another blizzard from the north, and predicts a terror. The mercury is now fifteen below and still falling.

Virginia Labor Convention.

Virginia Labor Convention. STAUNTON, Va., January 19.—A state convention representing the interests of the laboring classes of Virginia, and consisting of about one hundred delegates, assembled in this city today. C. W. Tyler, of Richmond, was elected permanent chairman, and S. M. Wood permanent secretary. The questions discussed today were: "Convict labor," "labor statistics" and the employment of children as laborers. After the adoption of a series of resolutions favoring the establishment of a state labor bureau, with a mechanic at its head, the convention adjourned until temorrow. It will be in session several days.

Advices from the frontier report further arrivals of Russian troops. One infantry division has arrived at Doubno and another at Rovito. The work of fortifying Doubno goes on without interruption. The condition of Russian troops on the Gallician frontier is growing worse. Typhus is raging, especially at Camp Czentoschan. Shelter is so miserable that there have been several deaths from frost-bite and general privation. The Warsaw commissariat is hastly forwarding provisions. A special sand y commission started yesterday for Czentoschan. The sufferings of troops are so great that, in the opinion of Berlin military circles, it will be impossible for them to remain encamped two months. Their condition, it is believed, must have excited the attention of the czar as the troops must either be given active work or be withdrawn from the frohtier. Austrians also suffer, being badly housed, but their commissariat is good and medical staff vigilant. In view of hardships suffered by the Austrian troops, and the sickness prevailing among Russians, the Vienna war office has decided not to increase the forces on the frontier at present.

Court carnival fetes which are usually had at the royal castle, will be held this year in the imperial palace. There will be no levee. Presentations to the emperor and empress will be maded during the frees at the palace. General Von Schweinitz, German ambassador to Russia, and Bismarck will come to Berlin to attend the carnival.

Social circles have received the announcement of this arrangement with satisfaction, and local trades people are also clated at the prospect of the czar making a prolonged stay in the capital. The season profiles to be a brilliant one. It opens with a court ball in the winter palace on January 25th, which will be followed by a succession of balls at Anitchkoff palace and the Hermitage till March 3rd. General Gresser, prefect of police, states that the police are convinced that there has been no organized plot against the czar's life recently, but no police in the world, he says, can prevent attempts of individual desperadoes to kill the czar.

GENERAL LONGSTREET

The Old Hero of the Contederacy in Retirement.

HOW THE GENERAL MOVES AND LIVES

The Home of the General and Its Surround-ings-The Financial Standing of the Great Confederate Officer.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., January 19 .- [Special.] Mrs. General James Longstreet has covered herself with glory by her letter, published in Puesday's Constitution, requesting the old oldiers to discontinue their contributions to the Longstreet fund, saying that their love and devotion was prized more by "their old chief" than gold and sliver. This is a grand sentence, and at once stamps her, in the eyes of the lovers of the "Lost Cause," as a woman of fine character and a true type of a loyal and true southern woman. Her letter, though brief and pointed, has the ring of true metal, and eaches deep down into the human heart. The words are grouped without any effort at dislay, and the sentiments which they carry show her to be a noble woman and a fit com-panion for that grand old military chieftain panion for that grand old military chieftain who figured so conspicuously in the late war, and who won and well deserved the title which he bore as the "grim war deg of the confederacy." He was, indeed, a power upon the battle field, and his military genius was acknowledged by all. Today he is, beyond doubt, the most distinguished soldier of those who figured in that war who is left to tell the tale. As Lee's right hand man, he stood and hurled against the enemy messengers of death until it was foolish to strive furthere when he surrendered, stacked arms and sought his home.

WHERE HE LIVES.

there when he surrendered, stacked arms and sought his home.

He lives among a people who love and honor him, and are ever ready to favor him. For thirteen years he has lived here, spending his time at his country seat one mile northeast of Gainesville, and at the "Piedmont hotel," which he owns, and is located about 100 yards from the Richmond and Danville railroad in this city. His farm consists of 100 acres of land, and on which is a handsome residence situated on a beautiful eminence. This place is worth from $6,000 to $7,000. The hotel cost him in the neighborhood of $18,000 to $20,000, but he receives very little revenue from this property. Besides this, he has some personal property, the amount your correspondent is unable to say. Suffice it to say that if he had the money which his real properly is worth, judiciously invested, he would be in easy circumstances. The general, though growing old and gray, is a very active man, and is always on the "go." He looks after his farm with a watchful eye, and spends a great deal of time in his vineyard, which is filled with a choice selection of grapes.

THE GENERAL'S FAMILY. General Longstreet's family is composed of himself, wife and five children, four sons and one daughter. Major John G, his eldest son, is about 35 or 36 years of age, is a bachelor, and is engaged in railroading. Robert Lee and James, Jr., are boys of sterling worth, and each has a snug position in Washington in the employ of the national government. Randolph is at home with his parents, assisting his father in the management of his business. Miss Lula, a bright young girl of fourteen, is a student at the Georgia Baptist seminary, of this city. This sums up the family circle, and a very interesting family it is. Mrs. Longstreet's maiden name was Garland, and all the children resemble her, with the exception of James, who is the picture of his father. THAT PENSION.

It is true that General Longstreet rew $25 from the state as his annual pension drew $25 from the state as his annual pension for the year 1887. The state voted this amount to maimed confederates of the state, and no one more richly deserved that bounty, though small, than the gallant Longstreet, who time and again proved his devotion and valor upon

The Young Man Did Not Want to Assume the Responsibility of Married Life.

SAVANNAH, Ga., January 19.—[Special.]—A home in this city is upset by an untoward event. Some few mouths ago a young and handsome compositor, who has a case in a Savannah printing office, used to set up matter during the day on the newspaper, and then he would set up telling the old old story at night. An engagement followed. January 18 was set for the day, but the typo was not in right form, and he did not want to stick. Finally the night arrived. The young lady, in the meantime, had made every preparation. There was no little uneasiness when the typo failed to send any message as to the details. At last the hour arrived, but the young typo did not appear, more than that he could not be found. This morning, however, he was found by the young lady's mother, and a stormy scene ensued. The typo said that he did not want to assume the responsibility of wedded life. That was about all he would say, and as he was obdurate, the match had to be broken of:

FORT GAINES, Ga., January 19.—[Special.] Two months ago the city council contracted with Colonel J. W. Baum, of Atlanta, to conwith Colonel J. W. Baum, of Atlanta, to construct a system of waterworks. The price paid was large. The work seemed to progress slowly, and with meagre conception of the results and benefits of the enterprise, many of our citizes thought we were paying "dear for the whistle." A substantial tank of approved style was placed on a tower seventy feet high, large mains from the artesian well were laid in every husiness street ending in a skylinch large mains from the artesian well were laid in every business street, ending in a six-inch pipe running into the tank on the tower. Mr. Samuel Mayer in a Peck of Trouble for Awhile.

Albany, Ga., January 19.—[Special.]—Mr. Samuel Mayer, an old citizen who amuses his idle moments by thrifty trades in horsefiesh, was terribly alarmed yesterday. He had left a mule hitched on the street with a view to showing it off. He went around to look for it about noon, and to his horror the mule was missing. Bystanders reported that they had seen a negro unhitch it and ride off boldly upon it some time before. There was great excitement in the breast of Mr. Moyer. A country negro reported that a negro had been seen riding a mule answering the description of the lost animal at arapid pace past Blue Spring, about four miles south of Albany. The police were notified, and one of them mounted and started to scour the country. Mr. Moyer's son-in law, Mr. Kaufman, took the first train per S. F. & M. railway to intercept the thief. He was accompanied by the vigilant city marshal. Mr. Mayer, wended his way sadly homewards to partially forget his sorrow in the charms of dining. He imparted the news of his loss to his family. Lo! the mule, they informed him, was safely housed in the stable. His hired man had been down town and seeing the mule had unhitched it and ridden it home to feed it. A Man Whose Career was Successful and Remarkable.

Dawson, Ga., January 19.—[Special.]—The career of William Wootten, a notice of whose death on Monday has already appeared, is another striking evidence of what may be accomplished in a very few years by economy, energy and a strict application to business. He had scarcely more than reached middle life, being but 51 years of age at his death, but has long been regarded as one of the wealthiest citizens of southwest Georgia, and in all probability richer than any other man in this immediate section, being worth it is supposed not less than $150,000, scarcely any of which is in real estate. He came to Dawson when about 21 years of age and when the town was in its infancy, and began as a clerk on a small salary. He afterwards taught school for a time, but tiring of this, he began merchandising on borrowed capital and by economy and strictness in his dealings entered at once upon a prosperous career, enjoyed by few men. In his dealings with his fellow-man he was strictly honest, and was always mentally absorbed in his own affairs, giving no thought to that which did not pertain either directly or indirectly to his business. He never married until he had not pertain either directly or indirectly to his business. He never married until he had reached 35 years of age, and since that time has always looked carefully to the interest of his family, has ever been a kind husband and generous father. Like other men, he was human and not without fault, but Dawson could have lost no other citizen whose death would be more generally regretted nor more severely felt by the people of Terrell county.

SHAVING ON SUNDAY.

The Barbers of the City of Albany Want a Rest.

Albany, Ga., January 1º.—[Special.]—The barbers, most of them God-fearing and conscientious men, are much hurt at the fact that the custom of many years here has necessitated their keeping open their barber shops upon the mornings of Sunday. Albanians must have their Sunday morning shave. They cannot commence the week without their chins being lathered and the hirsute growth removed by the skillful hands of a tonsorial artist. The barbers are in a dilemma. Their consciences remind them with gathering strength upon each dawn of another Sunday that they are heaping up the burden of their sins by descerating the Sabbath day. What can they do? If one barber, yielding to the dictates of his inward and accusing monster, closes up his shop, some enterprising competitor, without the fear of future punishment, and with thoughts intent upon present gain, will keep his shop open, accommodate the citizens and thus draw away his customers. In this emergency they have appealed to the city council to issue an ordinance prohibiting, under heavy penalties the opening of barber shops upon the Sabbath day. The petition is signed unanimously by every barber in the city. The city fathers have not yet fully decided as to their action in so weighty a matter, that of easing the consciences of a body of citizens, the barbers of the city, without detriment to their business. It is to be hoped that they will pass an ordinate. The Barbers of the City of Albany Want the city, without detriment to their business

1:40 train from Savannah. The majority of the company at once registered at the Hotel
Lanier as following: Lawrence Hanley, Kendal
Weston, E. J. Buckley, C. B. Handford, Walter Thomas, John Lane, Ben Rogers, G.
Davidson and wife, Julius Henderson, E. M.
Royle, Miss O'Leary, Ben Smith, Charles
Collins, Fred Vinion, Owen Fawcett, Charles Keohler.

Keohler.

Messrs, Barrett and Booth, with several other members of the company, remained in their private car at the Central depot all the afternoon. Carriages were sent for them at 7:15, and they went immediately to the Academy of Music.

Every reserved seat in the house is sold for their performance tonight. It is very doubtful whether there will be standing room on any floor.

From Southwest Georgia.

Macox, Ga., January 19.—[Special.]—The southwestern train brought in the following representation from that section to attend the Booth-Barrett performance to-night: Messrs. C. M. Rossan, Albany; H. A. Tarver, Albany; Lee Jones, Albany; O. T. Tarver, Albany; Ziba Bennette, Albany; R. S. Patillo, Albany; Mescer Shackleford, Albany; Miss Caude Dykes, Marshallville; H. C. Bayley and wife, Americus; Mrs. B. Myria, Annericus; Mrs. C. F. Crisp, Americus; Jos. Bailey, Jr., Americus; Miss Stella Duncan, Perry; C. B. Lewis, Montezuma; C. P. Ronis, Montezuma; J. T. The Recorder's CAurt.

Macon, Ga., January 19.—[Special.]—In this tribunal this morning Tom Matthews and Oss Sanford explained to the astisfaction of the recorder their entire innocence of the charge against them, which was fighting and disorderly conduct, so they were released.

Charles Carlvart, drunk on street, was assessed $2.50, or three days in prison.

John Tharp and Edwin Seibert were hanled up for violating the depot ordinances. The former paid $2.50, the latter $5.

Silas Leonard snatched a tarkey from in front of W. C. Turpin's store last night and ran, but was caught and handed over to the police.

AFTER FORTY YEARS An Old Man Leaves His Wife and Marrie

Another. AMERICUS, Ga., January 19.-[Special.]eorge Harris, aged nearly seventy, was granted a divorce at the present session of the superior court from his wife, to whom he had been married forty years, but with whom he has not lived for the past four years. She is nearly as old as he, and a large family of chil dren were the fruits of their union, all of whom still reside in Sumter county. On the same day that the divorce was granted, Mr Harris went to Macon and was th to a lady of that city. Rumor has it that two of his grown sons by his former marriage were so incensed with the old man that they set upon and beat him ferribly. There was never a breach of any kind between the divorced parties, they agreeing to separate at the time, which they did, and each going to live among their children. The aged groom with his blooming bride, it is said, have left for Texas, where they will reside in future, while the discarded Mrs. Harris is living comfortably in the home of one of her grown sons, near this city. Why the Attorneys Took Action in the MACON, Ga., January 19.—[Special.]—A CONSTITUTION reporter today met Mr. Nat Harris, the attorney of the Covington and Macon Railroad company in the litigation pending in Bibb superior court with its creditors.

In answer to inquiries about the condition of affairs, Mr. Harris said: "I see from the head lines to the dispatch from this city last head lines to the dispatch from this city last night to THE CONSTITUTION, that there was some mistake as to the state of the matter. The headlines seem to indicate that Colonel Machen's lawyers had obstructed the settlement. This is evidently an error. The application to impound the money was made by the attorneys of the creditors, who alleged that they were afraid their fees would not be paid by their clients and the other creditors. The attorneys of the road are arranging the settlement, and clients and the other creditors. The attorneys of the road are arranging the settlement, and Colonel Machen is standing ready to carry out his contract in every particular. The proceeding is not against the company at all. Colonel Machen's attorneys have never rejected the proposition now pending. He made it, with the full concurrence of the road and its attorneys, on October 13th, and it was rejected by the attorneys of the creditors. This morning's article appears to make the

This morning's article appears to make the impression that Machen was settling with his creditors, when, in fact, he had no creditors.

THE CREDITORS' MERTING.

Last night the creditors of the Covington and Macon Railroad company held a meeting at the Hotel Lanier. The purpose was to discuss the filing of the pretition, vertexly a poor.

at the Hotel Lanier. The purpose was to discuss the filing of the petition y esterday morning by the law firm of Dessau & Bartlett, Steed and Wimberly and Matt R. Freeman restraining the Machen settlement.

The creditors that were present are as follows: T. S. Johnson, who was made chairman, Roff Simms, secretary, L. W. Roberts, S. R. Jaques, A. Reynolds, W. A. Doody, A. D. Schoffeld, J. R. Van Buren, W. C. Seago, G. Burney, George Holmes, Bone & Chappell, N. I. Outter, Julian Edings and William Wimbert.

Wimbert.

A resolution was introduced by Mr. L. W. Roberts, asking that Judge Gustin dismiss his order that was issued yesterday in conformity with the larger petition.

This was adopted, after which an amendment was made by a committee of five, T. S. Johnson, Roff Simms, L. W. Roberts, S. R. Jaques, W. A. Doody, The amendment that was made, was to provide for the lawyers' fees, was made, was to provide for the lawyers lees, it not having been at any time the purpose nor inclination of the creditors to prevent the attorneys from receiving their just compensation. This amendment provided that the $25,000 to be paid to Colonel Machen should be placed in the hands of Chairman T. S. Johnson, to be paid by him to the greditors, and they to

to be paid to Colonel Machen should be placed in the hands of Chairman T. S. Johnson, to be paid by him to the creditors, and they to pay their lawyers from the amount they received; also, that the road should be released from the hands of the rec. ver.

The lawyers that made the petitian were called upon this morning by the committee, to see if they would agree to the proposition as made in the resolution. No definite answer could be made, as mest of the lawyers were engaged in cases at the superior court.

From what can be gathered it would seem that the lawyers would not consent to that part of the resolution stating that the $25,000 shall be placed with the chairman, Mr. J. A. Johnson, but that they wish to be protected in regard to their fees. Also, they wish compensation from the creditors for representing their claims, and desire to be paid fees for placing the road into hands of the receiver. And too, the creditors are willing to pay the fees charged on their separate claims have read willing that the creditors are willing to pay the fees charged on their separate claims, but are not willing that on their separate claims, but are not willing that the $25,000 should be taxed to pay fees for something that each creditor had employed his own lawyer to assist.

The lawyers' fees for this assistance (putting road-in hands of a receiver) is $3,000. This sum is in addition to charges made for collecting the creditor's claims (three per cent on the $25,000, and bringing that amount into court.)

On these points hangs the whole trouble of creditor and lawyer.

At Work on the Roads.

Macox, Ga., January 19.—[Special.]—The present approach to the cemetery has been a source of much anxiety to the city councils for years, but now at last the long needed improvement is being made. Superintendent Simpson has been ordered to use all the street force and tear down the bridge that crosses the small creek at the bottom of the hill; also to place in its stead-a culvert, then raise the street several feet. Handsome walks will be made on each side of the road. The expense of this work will amount to about $1,200.

It will take about thirty days to accomplish this. Then the force will be used to place the roads that lead to the park in better condition.

While passing the tie clipper over a bale of cotton in the press, his arm became caught between the bale and the upper came caught between the bale and the upper portion of the compress. The great lower jaw of the iron monster was rapily closing upon him, the pressure became more and more severe upon him. He struggled, squirmed and screamed with fright. His voice was drowned in the hissing of the steam. In a few moments more his arm would be crushed to a shapeless mass. It was impossible to extricate it. The mass. It was impossible to extricate it. The negro nearly fainted with terror. Mr. C. W. Tift, engineer in charge, happened to notice the predicament the darky was in. The lever was promptly turned and the moving compress came to a sudden stop, and the man's arm was saved.

THE WILL IS FOUND

And the Title to the Hill Property is Rewived.

Lexington, Ga., January 19.—[Special.]—
A sensation was created here today by the finding of what purports to be the will of the late Burwell Hill, in which he left his entire estate to his widow. Burwell Hill inherited from L. M. Hill, his father. Being insolvent, he made a contract by which Harry Hill, his son stood in his place in his father's will he made a contract by which Harry Hill, his son, stood in his place in his father's will. Upon the death of L. M. Hill, Burwell Hill and Harry Hill made a contract by which Burwell Hill had the right to dispose of the property as he pleased When Burwell Hill died no will was produced, and it was claimed he had not exercised his right of disposal, and that his interest in the estate was only for life, and there fore it reverted to Harry Hill. Litigation ensued. The case went to the supreme court. sned. The case went to the supreme court which decided that, as Burwell Hill had not ed of the property, his widow was no

The widow now produces a will, properly at-aged and in the late Burwell Hill's hand-cared and in the late Burwell but written tested and in the late Burweil Hill's hand-writing. It is not simply signed, but written throughout in the same hand, which experts say is that of Mr. Hill. The will was submit-ted to Mr. Romare, Professor Moore and Pro-fessor Goldsmith, of your city. It was admitted to probate here, and those familiar with Mr. Hill's handwriting say it was not a forgery, but a genuine will. It is claimed that it was found in an old book, where it had been laid away and forgotten.

Mr. Hill's counsel claims that the case is already settled by the highest court, and that the will will have no effect even if it is genuine, which they do not admit.

Edwin Booth.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: How old is Edwin Booth, and, in brief, what has been his career?
Edwin Booth was boun near Baltimore, Md., November 15, 1835. He is a son of the actor, Junius Brutus Booth, and was trained for the dramatic profession. Having filled many minor parts, he made his first regular appearance on the stage as Tressel, in Richard III., in place of his father, who had been suddenly taken ill. After a tour through California, Australia, many of the Pacific islands and the Sandwich Islands, he reappeared at New York in 1857, visited England and the continent in 1851, and, refurning to New York, commenced a series of Shakesperian revivals at the Winter Garden theatre (1863). THE GREAT DANGER TO DEMOCRACY Which Lurks Under the Noxious Shades of Free Trade-An Unanswerable Argument.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: When congress convened on the first Monday in last December, there was heard from free trade, whisky ring politicians a mighty blowing of trumpets. The earth was theirs, and they aimed to go up and possess it. They had the president, the cabinet, the speaker and absolute control of all the committees of the house, as well as some out-spoken advocates in the senate. The president's message was Mr. Carlisle's manifesto to the country. The whisky ring was in the saddle, and a John Gilpin ride ensued—to where?

Scarcely had the machinery in congress got into working order, when a reply from the American people reached its cars, and now the alarmed free trade men are hedging, entreating, clamoring for compromise, harmony, peace, reconciliation, anything to save the party, which is recognized to be in great and immediate danger. Not only are wool producers, speaking their mind in emphatic tones, but every industry in the whole land, hitherto protected from European pauper labor, by a tariff for revenue, is tremble, with apprehension. Agitation is causing capital to shrink into itself, and the costly glass works have already closed their shops for an indefinite period, in many places because it and all like industries are threatened with overthrow, if Speaker Carlisle's policy prevails. It is suspected that the president is easily influenced, where he is manifestly unacquainted with great public problems, and is also accredited with enough of obstinacy, to make such influence dangerous to the business interests of the United States. There is no chance for reasoning withstubdangerous to the business interests of the United States. There is no chance for reasoning withstubborn people as a rule. They shut both eyes and cars, and having sworn a horse is fifteen feet high, will hold to the assertion to the end of the chapter. The president rushed in, where sagacious, prudent party leaders were afraid to tread; and like many other rash deeds, the reaction followed instanter. For more than ten years the democratic party has shrewdly declined to risk a split on the tariff. Every political platform has been so constructed as to mean political platform has been so constructed as to mean much or little, according to the locality where it was explained. For all that time, the radicals have been giving a dare to free traders, and the democrats pradently declined to risk a dangerous or losing fight. Until the challenge was accepted, democracy could protect "with a tariff for revenue," and could also advocate "reduction," when it was manifestly needed. The tariff plank in the national platform of 1884 was cordially accepted in Ohio and Pennsylvania, as well as in Kentucky and political platform has been so constructed as to mean Pennsylvania, as well as in Kentucky and Louisiana. Genoral Hancock's sore experience made prudent democrats very cautious, and Mr Cleveland won his nomination because he was sup-posed to be qualified to learn party tactics as well as to become sagacious in his personal ambitions. Whether adulation has unsettled his judgment, or whether his personal friendship for free trade advocates unduly influenced his decision, may never be known, but one thing is certain, he blazed away with a kicking gun that has knocked down more in the certain that he in the foot. The charge was a free with a kicking gun that has knocked down more in the rear than in the front. The charge was a tremendous one, and made a loud report. It is difficult to estimate whether his advisers in the party or the tariff democrats are more thoroughly apprehensive at present as to what that kicking gun might do with further incatious handling, and the thinid men, both north and south, are pleading for no tariff legislation this session; begging for a hold up and hold off until next November, never understanding that President's Gleveland's next campaign will rest solely upon Mr. Cleveland's political record since March 4th, 1856, and not upon the political platform of 1881, on which he was then elected. Foolof 1881, on which he was then elected. Fool-hardy men, like Mills, of Texas, with never comprehend that democratic success is dependent on a harmonious party, north and south, while segacious northern democrats are well aware that the fight in their own districts, with Mr. Cleve-

Mr. DeGive has wisely selected a comedian of merit, Roland Reed, to follow the great Booth and Barrett company. Mr. Reed is underlined for Jan-nery 23 and 24th. On Monday night and at the nery 23 and 24th. On Monday night and at the Tuesday matinee he will present "Humbug," a farcial comedy; and on Tuesday night. "The Woman Hater," an eccentric comedy. Mr. Reed will introduce topical songs, medleys and his popular piano-recitals. The Detroit, Evening News says:

Roland Reed secured a prize when he bought John T. Raymond's comedy of "A Woman Hater."
But, heside the play itself, Mr. Reed seems to have come into possession of some of the arts for which the late lamented "Colonel Sellers" was famous, for be kent the large audience at White's in almost a do until next November to keep their seats in congress. To this complexion has it come. The south has divided on the tariff and the continuance of internal vided on the tariff and the continuance of internal revenue system, while the north has been tied up because of Mr. Cleveland's impolicy and rash advisers. To ignore a tariff bill in the house of representatives will make Mr. Cleveland ridieulous, because he practically calls on congress to "save the country" by free trade. To remove protection from the wool and iron industries, will spread confusion and disaster everywhere, for the wool growing states will unite against him to a man; and all southern iron works would fight for existence. There is but one remedy—one chance for success come into possession to some of the ansi no which the late lamented "Colonel Sellers" was famous, for he kept the large andience at White's in almost a constant roar of laughter last night. The pretended woman hater, who is really a great admi-er of the fair sex, and who is only restrained from proposing by as abnormal bashulness, finds himself involved in not only one but three entangling alliances at the same time. This unhappy predicament forms the basis of innumerable ridiculous situations, not the least amusing of which is his incarceration, by mistake, in a private lumatic asylum. Mr. Reed shows noticeable improvement since he was last seen here, and his acting is more flushed and artistic than before. His song "Never Again" made a decided hit. The company is fairly good. The sopherte part of Miss Lewis, who is a very pretty and charming young girl, was particularly pleasing. There is but one remedy—one chance for success—namely, an abolition of the internal revenue system, and a wiping out of the army of spies, informers, marshals, collectors and all the posse which has fattened at the public crib, solely to keep the whisky ring in safety and perpetuity. Like unsavory criminals, the whisky ring choose to be kept in prison, because outside prejudice is so strong against them. Because the nded warehouses need so much protection, at excuse by the rich men of Atlanta.

Louis James is a popular young tragedian whose excllent work has placed him in the front rank in his profession: Marie Wainwright is un-doubtedly one of the finest actresses—is, in short, very generally considered the greatest American such vast expense, our republican institutions are travestied and a free people are subjected to fil-treatment and injustice that would have made an Austrian Haynau blush. And yet it has the cheek of Satan, who whispered sellition in Eden, and These two distinguished artists will visit Atlanta These two distinguished artists with visit Addita on Friday and Saturday of next week, presenting three of the best plays of their repertoire—"Virgin-ius," "Ingomar" and W. S. Gilbert's "Gretchen." The public may expect performances of the high-est order, and they will not be disappointed. of Satan, who whispered selition in Eden, and called it wisdom. So these whisky ring monopolists call themselves temperance advocates—and their mammoth profits on whisky an aid to temperance success. Satan never assumed a disguise that was so thin and transparent; but the president's opinious are apparently colored by thin arguments, and he has, unfortunately, placed himself where his chances for success at the polls are dependent entirely upon a faction that is resolved to wipe out and abolish this terrible curse upon our progress. Senators Brown and Vance are correct in their diagnosis of the situation. The path to success lies diagnosis of the situation. The path to success lies that way, and it behooves the democratic party to heed their advice.

WIDE-AWAEF. "Blood Will Tell."
Yes, the old adage is right, but if the liver is disordered and the blood becomes thereby corrupted, the bad "blood will tell" in diseases of the skin and throat, in tumof's and ulcers, and tubercles in the lungs (first stages of consumption) even although the subject be descended in a straight line from Richard Cœur de Lion, or the noblest Roman of them all. For setting the liver in order no other medicine in the world equals Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Try it, and your "blood will tell" the story of its wenderful efficiency. The Atlanta and Selma Road and Our Rich In addition to the apprehension of the first subscribers to a railroad losing their stock, we may mention as another excuse for not subscribing to this railroad—first, the pleas that the enterprise has so much merit that the road will be built by some-body whether the people of Atlanta do or do not take stock in it. Especially is this the plea and the Shakspeare's Kisses. From the Washington Star.

As to this excuse, it may be remarked that the time has rassed when any more railroads can be built in the south, if anywhere, upon fictitious stock and the issue and sale of londs, as has been done in the south, if anywhere, upon fictitious stock and the issue and sale of londs, as has been done in the beautiful and the sale and sale of the sale and sale of londs. Shakspeare has given the world some remarkable kisses. In "Taming of the Shrew" Petruchio takes the bride about the neck and kisses done in some cases. The become by which capitalists, widows and orphans have been fleeced of millions upon militions in all parts of the -world by becomers and sharpers are played out, at least for a season, as it should be forever.

But if this were not the case, the powerful syndi-cate which now controls the Georgia Central on one side and the syndicate of the Georgia Pacific on the other side of this Atlanta and Selma road will for-ever deter non-resident syndicates and speculators from embarking their capital in this road until a o'id basis is es'ablished among the people and by the people intimately interested in it, for the truth is, where the people are interested and desire a road the opposition of non-resident syndi-cates creates a sympathy, strength and determina-tion among the people to complete the enterprise. following:

people. And still more conspicuous is the success of the Atlanta and Hawkinsville road, which will never be gobbled up by non-resident syndicates.
Indeed, capitalists are everywhere learning that their money is safest when loaned where the people are determined to build, own and control the railroads in their midst, and so may it ever be.

A Sound Sleeper. From the Covington, Ga., Enterprise. A Newton county young man told our devil that he never closed his eyes in sleep for six weeks, and at the expiration of that time he took a seat on a nail keg to rest and feil over backwards in a box of papers, where he slept soundly for six weeks on a stretch without ever changing his position or opening his eyes.

The second plea or excuse made, and especially by the rich men of Atlanta, is that if they take stock, and the company has only half enough subscribed to build it, they must double up their stock or see it sold to other parties, who will reap all the A Reprieve for the Condemned. Wretched men and western long condemned to suffer the tortures or dyspopsia, are filled with new hope afte; a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The budding hope blossoms into the fruition of certainty, if the Bitters is into the fruttion of certainty, if the Bitters is persisted in. It brings a reprieve to all dyspepties who seek its aid. Flatulence, hearthurn, sinking at the pit of the stomach between meals, the nervous tremors and insomnia of which chronic indigestion is the parent, disappear with their hateful progenitor. Most beneficent of stomachies! who can wonder that in so unany instances it awakens grateful eloquence in those who, benefited by it, speak voluntarily in its behalf. It requires a graphic pen to describe the torments of dyspepsia, but in many of the testimonials received by the proprietors of the Bitters, these are portrayed with vivid truthfulness. Constipation, billionsness, muscular debility, malarial fevers and rheumatism are relieved by it. This, it must be confessed, has been too often the case, but neither the Georgia railroad, the Central road or the West Point was ever sold out to pay its debts, although all of them payed through the calamities of a great war. And here the question arises: have we not as pradent, honest and wise business men in Atlanta as Augusta and Savannah had before the wast And then again is not the programme, the subscription list presented by the agents of this company a guarantee against possible bankruptey or loss in the enterprise. Say, or tech men of Atlanta, are you to take the responsibility of the failure of this magnificent enterprise, Magnificent, and indispensable to the continued growth and prosperity of Atlanta. Surely, if you continue to stand on your dignity and wealth, and give this work the cold shoulder, and thereby de east the enterprise, your standing among your neighbors may not be altogether enviable. The Whisky Ring. It is remarkable how loudly the members of the whisky ring clamor against free whisky when there is an effort made to repeal the internal revenue laws.

Nobody thinks of compelling these manufacturers to continue a business that does not pay. They can abandon it whenever it suits them. There will be no compulsion to force them to distill grain into whisky, and give it away.

The trouble is that under the presen revenue laws they have a huge monopoly. They wield an immense power; they cor rupt legislation with it; oppress the people; divert money from its proper channel, and do many things under cover of a high duty on liquor that can and will be prevented if the states are allowed to control the matter.

We might shut up every distillery in Georgia, and it would not affect the supply of liquor one drop. The Whisky Trust has immense plants that stand idle half the time, and one of these large concerns can make more liquor in forty-eight hours than can be made in the whole of Georgia in one month. Dr. Josiah Strong in his work, "Our Country," page 79, says of these manufactories:

According to the census the capital invested in their manufacture was, in 1880, $132,051,290. mon purpose, is a mighty power. And this power does not lack organization. There is a combination of all the distillerles north of the Ohlo from Pittsburg to the Pacific. Their success at Washington, a few years since, in securing legislation which granted to whisky makers peculiar privileges accorded to no other tax payers, is sufficient evidence of their

Does anybody doubt the existence of this organization? It has been spreading since 1880 until it reaches all over the country. It has more power today in Washington than any combination of men that hang around the capital. Dr. Strong copies from a letter written by C. B. Catton, printed in the Voice for February 5th, 1885. giving the manner of working a legislative body by this power. He states that "the lobby has used millions of dollars in corrupt bargaining and bribery, and never has made a secret of the fact; yet no member was ever caught in the act, and it is fair to presume no one ever will be."

It is not strange to hear this power clamoring for the dear people to save it from free whisky-to keep up this law that has served its purpose-and to denounce our industries when we understand these things. The best monopolies are dangerous to the libertles of our people. How, then, can we class the danger of such a monopoly as described by Dr. Strong?

SENATOR' RIDDLEBERGER threatens to become a democrat, and therefore the republican organs are declaring that he is a very mean man. Riddleberger ought to be proud of such abuse.

Some Facts About the Revenue Laws. The Macon Telegraph concludes an editorial on the internal revenue system as fol-

The most ignorant man in the mountains knows what he may or may not do under the internal revenue act. The argument for the repeal of the The moonshiners and their associates are not alto gether happy under the existing law, and it should therefore be repealed. Culprits do not usually enjoy acts | a sed for their restraint, whether they live not be defiles of the live Ridge, along the coast, or on the border. The wisdom and justice of a law are not to be tested in that way. It should not be forgotten that without culprits there would not be forgotten that without culprits there would not be under the internal revenue act any inquisitions, esplonage, harshness, raids, bloodshed, or intermence of federal courts. On this point we would like to call to the stand that honest, straightforward Georgian whose expertence as marshal of the north trict, where moonshiners abound, would ony very valuable.

This is the large and enlightened view that a democratic paper takes of the opera tions of a law that is obnoxious to every democratic principle, and that has been consistently opposed by the democratic party from the beginning of the government down to the present time.

Certainly the Telegraph is either ignorant of the operations of the law, or, for some purpose or other, prefers not to look the facts in the face. Fortunately, the ignorance of the Telegraph in this matter (if it. is ignorance) does not extend to the democratic people of Georgia. They understand the law and know how harsh its operations

The law is not only rigorous and cruel but when it was enforced under a republican administration it was brutal and ish. The Telegraph wants Marshal Nelmi called to the stand, but that is not necessary. It is the testimony of all who know anything about the matter that Marshal Nelms has not only made an efficient officer but that, under his administration, the inherent brutality of the law has been greatly mitigated. But the marshal has no power to modify the law. He must execute it and he is in no wise responsible for the hardships that are the result of its opera-

But the view of the Telegraph that the law affects only culprits and criminals is all dodge is resorted to upon the arrival of wrong. Let us take the operations of the law for the past ten years-bearing in mind the fact that for four years of these ten demcratic officials have injected as much mildn into the execution of the law as is consistent with their sworn duty. From June 30, 1877, to June 30, 1887, as the figures in the office of the commissioner of revenue Georgia alone, 4,647 prosecutions based on indictments or criminal informations. Of this number there were 2,533 convictions, while 2,114 were acquitted. It is to be remembered that these men, whether innocent or guilty, were dragged from their nes and friends, away from the vicinage where the crime was alleged to have been committed. In only one other country in the civilized world is this method of arrest my exists in its most odious forms. These men were not only dragged away from their homes and friends and brought to Atlanta, but it seems that 2,114 were dragged away unjustly. They were acquitted. The court decided in effect that the charges against them were false and unfounded.

Does the Telegraph, with its large and enlightened views, have no sympathy for these men who are unjustly dragged away from their families on charges that could not be sustained. Leaving altogether out of sight the fundamental democratic opposition to excise taxes in every shape and form, does it not occur to .the Telegraph that a law which drags men away from their homes to be tried is unjust? Does it not occur to the Telegraph that a law under which innocent men can be dragged away from their homes on false charges is undemocratic, un-American, oppressive and brutal?

But even this is not all. If to the 4,647 men who were dragged away from their homes we add the witnesses who were summoned to Atlanta in behalf of the defense or the prosecution, the number of men who were compelled to come to Atlanta will probably reach ten or fifteen thousand. When it is remembered that these men are all poor farmers, with no one to look after their business during their absence, and when it is further remembered that the whisky tax is an unnecessary tax which goes to swell the surplus and protect the whisky ring in its onopoly, there seems to be no reasonable excuse for a law which compels the commission of such outrages.

Under all the circumstances it seems to us that only the blindest prejudice could suggest an argument in favor of the perpetnation of such an unjust law-a law that is opposed in letter and spirit to every essential principle of democracy.

THE Charleston News and Courier, although opposed to the protection of southern industries, wants all new manufactories in South Carolina to be exempt from taxation for a term of years. This is a very queer position for a free trade journal to

A Terrible Prospect for Theater-Goers. In a recent sermon in Kansas City the Rev. Sam Small paid his respects to the misguided people who sometimes visit the theater. To do Mr. Small justice, he spoke more n sorrow than in anger. In the course of his remarks he said:

No. I don't think God will put you in hell for ake the vows of the church and then go, God will put you in hell for lying. Put that in your pipe and smoke it. I never heard anybody doubt hat God would put you in hell for perjury. I've the Bible for it, and you watch out, because hel in't a half mile ahead of you.

It will be seen from this that the church member who goes to the theater will be sent to hell, not because he went to the theater, but because in going there he broke his church vows. Small's view of it. On the other hand, such preachers as Dr. Talmage, Dr. Lyman Abbott and Dr. R. A. Holland do not see any harm in going to the theater to see what is called the legitimate drama. The newspapers say that Dr. Talmage, during the present winter, went to see Booth and Barrett, and was very much pleased with what he saw and heard. We do not for one moment propose to maintain the position that Messrs. Talmage, Abbott and Holland are safer guides than Mr. Small, but it is interesting to compare the views of these famous divines.

After all, it is a big question, and every intelligent man must figure it out for him-

THE opposition to the repeal of the internal revenue laws on the part of the freetraders is based on their desire to open American markets to foreign manufacturers who pay no taxes here. This will drive then the farmers will discover who are their best friends-those who favor building up home markets or those who favor tearing

The Fight Against the Chinese. The Californians are more determined than ever to exclude the Chinese, if such a thing is possible. The restriction act passed by congress has not worked satisfactorily.

Nothing short of the most rigid measures will meet the necessities of the case. It must be borne in mind that the Chinese are a sharp, quick-witted, artful race. They care nothing about the oaths administered in our courts, and do not hesitate to swear themselves out of their difficulties. Their manner of evading the anti-immigration law shows their cunning. A ship load of Chinamen enters the harbor at San Francisco, and the collector of the port at once takes the immigrants into his custody and forbids them to land. Their brother Chinamen in the city sue out writs of habeas corpus and have the prisoners brought before the federal court. Then bail is applied for. When the day arrives for the hearing of the case the defendants do not appear, but in their places a number of resident Chinamen come forward, answering to the names of the prisoners. This game is nearly always successful, as one Chinaman looks so much like another that the officers cannot identify them. The object of this substitution is plain. The restriction act does not apply to Chinamen who were residents of California before the act was passed, and who returned to China on a visit. These bogus defendants, therefore, swear that they are not immigrants, and that they are returning to California from a visit to their native land. Their replies to the questions asked of course show a familiarity with this country, and the result is their release. This every batch of immigrants. In thus hoodwinking the courts the Chinamen are powerfully aided by the secret societies to which they belong. One peculiarity of the Chinamen in this country is their habit of banding themselves together in associations. These organizations are so strong and unscrupulous that it is almost impossible to convict a Chinaman of any offense. The moment his trial comes on witnesses spring up from every quarter and pile up testimony mountains high in his favor. Practically a Chinaman is above the law in California. The only way to reach him is through mob violence. Perhaps the Californians could stand all this were it not for the fact that these strange people are addicted to vices so gross. so utterly vile, that they cannot even be permitted. That country is Russia, where named in print. Wherever they go, sooner or later, they begin to corrupt young children. They do not let their victims off with smoking opium. They eling to them leave them the most debased wrecks of humanity upon the face of the earth. It will now be understood why the people on the Pacific coast are so violently oppos to Chinese immigration, and it is easy to see that this question will continue to push its way to the front until the government settles it in some shape.

THE New York Press says: "The Lamar matter is settled." It is indeed, and settled satisfactorily.

Moving in the Right Direction.

If anything could emphasize the importance of the immigration movement discussed in our editorial of vesterday, it would be the mass meetings now being held in Kansas City to send immigrants to the south Atlantic states. The builders of Kansas City are wise. They know that when a man immigrates to the west he is lost to them forever. He not only gets beyond their reach, but becomes a competitor. If he comes into the south Atlantic states he becomes a consumer and a purchaser, and his relations lead him back toward Kansas City as a trading point.

Hence, Kansas City is holding mass meetings and starting machinery to turn the tide of immigration from the far west into the south Atlantic states.

What a lesson this is for the railroads of our section!

President Norton, of the Louisville and Nashville! President Thomas, of the East Tennessee! President Scott, of the Richmond and Danville! President Alexander, of the Georgia Central! Manager Gault, of the Queen and Crescent! Gentlemen! Gentlemen all! Do you see the importance of this?

It is men that build up the country, and as the country builds up the railroads

Let the tide of immigration continue to the frozen west, and every man who passes the Mississippi river is lost forever to you as a factor in building up your property. Stop that tide of immigration and turn it into the south Atlantic states, and what happens?

Every man goes to work for your railroads. Every ton of iron he mines must pay you freight. Every bushel of corn he raises or buys; every bale of cotton, pays toll to you. When he travels he pays you his fares. Every man living in this section represents just so much in your treasury. He is part of your capital.

Now, what are you doing to increase this capital and thereby build up your property? Not only is the east and the near western states sending their surplus beyond the Rocky mountains, but the great southwest and even the northwest, is drawing men by the thousands from your territory, and thus daily diminishing the people to make freights for you and pay you passenger toll. Now, every hamlet and city in this section is ready to co-operate with you in bringing about a change. They are ready to do every thing possible to stop the tide of western immigration and to fill this section with farmers and artisans, home-seekers from a bleaker. and less hospitable clime. Even nature is nelping in this work. The present snow blockades and storms of the far northwest will send thousands of homeseekers from those states with the coming spring. With the Now, shall we profit by that? best section of the republic, with every inducement to make a man's home happy and prosperous, shall we set still and see the constant drain of stout workers to the southwest and northwest, without protest or interference? Or shall we whirl in and build up our waste places and bring a constant tide of visitors, prospectors and homeseek- Miss Jennie Bowie. ers into the southern states?

THE CONSTITUTION will do its part in this great work, and it will do it with a system and efficiency exceeding anything it has yet attempted. Will the railroad cooperate?

We shall see.

THE most voluminous defense of the infamous internal revenue system that we have yet seen is from the pen of Larry Gantt, who holds a position in the revenue service. Certainly we wish our old friend well.

The exercises began with an exhibition drill by sixteen members of the company, commanded by Captain Clifford L. Anderson. A finer drill was never witnessed in the city, and the precise, soldierly bearing of the gallant Guard was a matt of general and highly favorable comment. The various evolutions were performed with the vigor and steadiness of veterans, and the men were again and again applauded.

This was followed by an exhibition fancy drill by ergeant Harden and Private McMillan. It would be difficult to imagine greater skill in handling a musket. The evolutions were varied and good hroughout.

Then came the prize drill. There were five nedals to be drilled for, and the contest was exciting from the very beginning. One by one the soldier boys were disqualified, and were applauded as they retired, while the contest become more and Private McMillan was the last one left, and as soon as this question was decided the company was formed and the medals presented. Private McMillan received first medal, Sergeaut R. a few appropriate remarks.

"I remember," said Captain Milledge, "when I ed to study and labor for occasions of this kind used to study and moor for occasions of this kind, and I don't think any body ever guessed the amount of work that was expended on my carefully pre-pared 'extempores.' But I've stopped all that, and I speak tonight as it comes from the heart." Cantain Milledge proceeded in his happiest maner, paying a high tribute to the officers and the embers of the Guard. He was frequently interrupted by applause, and at the conclusion of his re-marks, presented Captain Anderson with a magnificent sword. The following inscription, beautifully etched on the blade, explains the

The workmanship of both blade and scatobard is sequisite in design and finish, and the gift is a fiting tribute to a brave man.

Captain Anderson was taken wholly by surprise, out accepted the gift gracefully.

A peculiar interest had been aroused by the drawing, which was to take place after the supper. This was for two rings, one a cluster diamond and the other so emerald set in diamonds. The two were valued at $300, and 410 chances were sold at one dollar each. In conducting the drawing two glass jars were used. In one were 410 cards, bearing those numbers which had been sold. In the other jar were 409 blank cards and one card bearing the word "rings." Two little children, blindfolded, drew from the two jers. A card bearing a number was drawn from one jar, and simultaneously a blank from the other, until the card bearing the word "rings" was drawn, and the card drawn from the other jar at the same time bore the num ber of the winner. Father Kelley won the rings. Each of the little children selling the tickets was entitled to five chances. from the Ohio and Mississippi river. Beyond these rivers, you know, we have no say so. Just the other day the Mobile and Ohio railroad requested us to give a reduced rate to a party of land seekers who desired to visit the state of Alabama on a prospecting tour. We cheerfully complied, and will always grant like requested soming from the great railway lines north of the Ohio river.

"But we cannot give a local rate of one cent a mile to those rivers, because even if given for the benefit of certain persons, under the interstate commerce bill all persons would have a right to enjoy that rate. Besides, the roads beyond would want the same rate into our territory, and this would be reinous to the passenger traffic. At this very time we are ARRANGING A LOW BATE from beyond the Ohio river, for the benefit of land buyers. This will be an open rate to certain land points in the South Atlantic states. Among them are Eastman and Tallapoosa."

"How about people in the northwest who wish to come south."

"Well, the Southern Passenger association through its rate committee stand ready to meet them with low rates at the Ohio river and bring them on their way rejoicing. Their only trouble fivould be to get the Central tariff association, which controls the roads west of Buffaio and north of the Ohio river, to unite with us in giving them the low rates. Of course they would have to pass over those lines in keoming down."

"Are the south Atlantic states getting many immigrants from Europe?"

"No, sir; and the reason is simple. The immigrants are under contract to land at Castle Garden, and Castle Garden is under contract with the great railroads which connect with the big western lines to furnish them with the immigrants. These great railroads haul them to the west.

"The distance from New York to Pittsburgby the Pennsylvania road is 480 miles. It is 36 course worth more to the Pennsylvania road to carry the immigrant to Pittsburg than to Washington. Public Sentiment.

The high favor with which THE CONSTITUTION's remarks upon this interesting and important subject have been received on all sides above that public sentiment indorses the movement. The people stand ready to do their share. The question which is heard on all sides is "will the railroads do theirs?"

Colonel Slaughter's remarks upon this point will be read with great interest.

LARD CAUSED IT.

A Western Bioker Arrested on a Warrant Yesterday.

Wm. Seears, a well known broker in western lards, with an office on Alabama stree, was arrested yesterday by Bailiff Owens, an attache of Judge Tanner's court, upon a warrant charging him with embezzling the funds of N. K. Fairbanks & Co., lard refiners of St. Louis,

The warrant was sworn out by M. S. Swortz-

Mr. Swortzkopf is the general agent for the Fairbanks lard company, and came to Atlanta three or four days ago. Mr. Seears, the At-lanta agent, has been in the city for several motiths, and during that time has done a big business. Mr. Swortzkopf's visit to the city was not unexpected to the Atlanta agent, because he has been with the Fairbanks company so many years that he has ascertained that a general agent is liable to drop in at any minute. The general agent of the company, it appears, has authority to move about the country at will, and to look into and investifears, has authority to move about the country at will, and to look into and investigate the business of any special or local agent. When Mr. Swortzkopf reached Atlanta he spread his name upon the Kimball house register, and on the next morning called to see Mr. Seears. The local agent knew the gentleman, and at once surrendered to him the keys to everything. Mr. Swortzkopf began an investigation of the books, accounts and papers, and during the time was almost constantly in company with Mr. Seears. During the time the relationship between the two agents was of the most pleasant nature. Yesterday morning the investigation was completed and about noon Mr. Swortzkopf invited Mr. Seears to dine with him. The two went to the Kimball house together, and at the table discussed the business. After dinner Mr. Separs returned to his office on Alabama street, leaving Mr. Swortzkopf at the hotel. Later in the day Bailliff Owens entered Mr. Seears' office and, exhibiting a warrant charging him with embezzlement, placed him under arrest. The prisoner manifested great surprise when shown the warrant, but expressed a willingness to accompany the officer to Judge Tanner's office. There he ascertained that the It is a giant whose eyes—a thousand headlights—fiash upon almost every nook and corner of the south Atlantic states, whose arm—a

Mr. Swortzkopf could not be found after the arrest was made, but it is understood that he claims a shortage in Mr. Seears' accounts. The general agent asserts that the special agent has sold goods and collected bills, for which he has made no returns to the company.

which he has made no returns to the company.
But, there are two sides to the question.
Mr. Seears declares most emphatically that his arrest, and the charge against him, are not only without foundation, but are unjust. He says his books are not incorrect in any respect and invites a careful inspection, He also says that he has more goods on hand now than he is charged with at the general office in St. Louis.

He Was Fined Twenty Dollars.

H. C. Howell, the young man who was arrested at Willie Briton's bagnio, on Collins street, Tuesday night, was arraigned in the police court yesterday morning. Howell attempted to prove that he was assaulted in the house, badly beaten and robbed. He failed to establish his claim, while the witnesses against him showed that he was the cause of the trouble. Judge Anderson fined Howel $20 and cost. Immediately after paying the fine Howell went before a justice and swore out warrants against two women in the house, charging them with larceny. The women responded by swearing out warrants against Howell, charging him with assault and battery. Howell's home is in Macon.

He Had Cologne. George Leonard, a young negro, was given a cell in the city prison yesterday, charged with larceny. The negro was arrested by Captain Crim. A few days ago Leonard began scattering cologne and soaps among his friends in a profuse style. Thematter was brought to the attention of the police, who, in investigating the matter, ascertained that Leonard was quite friendly with a negro who had been working at Dr. Jacobs's drug store. A visit to the drug store disclosed the fact that perfumes, soap and toilet articles had been missed constantly. Captain Crim, who was looking into the matter, became satisfied that Dr. Jacobs's employe was stealing the articles and giving them to Leonard to dispose of. An attempt was made to arrest both, but only Leonard could be found. George Leonard, a young negro, was given a these rivers, you know, we have no say-so. Just the other day the Mobile and Ohio rail-road requested us to give a reduced rate to a party of land seekers who desired to visit the state of Alabamason a prospecting tour. We cheetfully complied, and will always grant like requests coming from the great railway lines north of the Ohio river.

"But we cannot give a local rate of one cent a mile to those rivers, because even if given for the benefit of certain persons, under the interstate commerce bill all persons would have a right to enjoy that rate. Besides, the roads beyond would want the same rate into our territory, and this would be ruinous to the passenger trails. At this very time we are the passenger trails. At this very time we are almost beyond the Ohio river, for the benefit of land buyers. This will be an open rate to certain day lounds in the South Atlantic states. Among them are Eastman and Tallapoosa."

Two Tramps Apply For a Night's Longing at the City Prison.

Two rusty looking tramps walked into the city prison about nine o'clock last night, and approaching the officer in charge, said:
"Cap'n, we'd like to get a night's lodging."
Captain Couch, who has a wholly hatred for tramps, stepped forward, saying:
"All right, you can get a night's lodging; but we keep contracts here for tramps to sign."
"And what are they?" asked the big one of the two.

the two.

The captain stepped to the desk and took down a blank check on Lowry's bank. Turning to the tramp, he said:

"Here it is. If you stay all night you'll have to sign this."

"And what is it?"

"You agree to take prison fare and work on the streets four days," said the captain, looking at the piece of paper as though reading.

"What?" said the big man.

"You heard me read it, didn't you?" asked the captain.

the captain.
"Well, I won't sign that," said the big man-

"All right. Write your name and I'll fix the blank."
The tramp picked up the pen and wrote James Harrison in a pretty, round hand. He was then given a cell and supper, and this moraing will be given his liberty.

the the assistance of the railroads, and the results may be more encouraging."

"Are the south Atlantic states getting many immigrants from Europe?"

"No, sir; and the reason is simple. The immigrants are under contract to land at Castle Garden, and Castle Garden is under contract with the big western lines to furnish them with the humingrants. These great railroads haul them to the west.

"The distance from New York to Pittsburg by the Pennsylvania road is 480 miles. It is so course worth more to the Pennsylvania road is 480 miles. It is so distinct for every Europern immigrant to Pittsburg than to Washington. So he goes to Pittsburg and finds his way to the west. We have to fight for every Europern immigrant the we get to Washington."

"Den't fexas get European immigrants?"

"Yes, a large number, but they go direct to Galvesten by the Morgan line of steamers."

For the Great Performance at De-Cive's Tonight.

THE OPERA HOUSE PERFECTLY SAFE. The Various Exits Described Good Seats to Booth and Barrett Trunks, Etc.

The biggest crowd which ever graced De-Give's operahouse will probably see the crafty Isgo scheme against the noble Othello tonight. The wealth and the fashion of Atlanta, and for many miles around, will be there. The outlook is that by nightfall every available seat in the building will be taken, and the number who will occupy S. R. O.—well, it would make even the clerk of a house of representatives weary just to think of trying to count them.

All will enjoy the great play-and while some few may not be able to catch and hold the grand able to catch and hold the grand ideas of the great master of human passion, there will not be a man, woman or child among that vast assemblage who will not thoroughly understand what Iago means when, in the last scene of all, he bends over the dead body of Othello and without saying one word simply looks at him. That is Booth's masterpiece of facial expression—once seen, easily understood and to live in the memory as long as the memory lives.

Yes, all will enjoy the great play, but there is no reason in the world for even the most nervous individual in the audience to have the slightest fear of a panic. There is no danger no cause for fear of danger. There are a numno cause for fear of danger. There are a number of exits from DeGive's opera house. There are six on the lower floor. Stand, in fancy, on the stage; now face the great audience in your minds, and they will be pointed out. To the right of the orchestra there is a large exit leading from the parquette out into the passage way by the private box and right down a broad stairway, into Mariette et each.

way by the private box and right down a broad stairway into Marietta street. Just beyond this exit, to the right of the dress circle there is a wide doorway leading down three or four steps into the vestibule, from which, after marking off a few paces, one can pass out by five large windows to the spacious veranda up the or down the main entrance of only a few steps to the pavement of Marietta street. Fifteen or twenty feet beyond this exit of the dress circle are the wide doors of the main entrance, through which the people pass, then dress circle are the wide doors of the main en-trance, through which the people pass, then down six steps, across two feet of landing, thence out of the fire windows of the vestibule opening on the piazza, or down the stairway of the main entrance into Marletta street. Remember, now, all the above described exits are on your right as you face the entrance exits are on your light as you face the entrance from the stage.

Now, on your left, as you stand facing the audience, is another large exits. It is directly opposite the main entrance, and consists of a large doorway at the head of a short, broad flight of steps leading straight down into a wide alley. A little nearer the stage, on your left, is another big doorway opening on a few steps which lead right down to the landing at steps which lead right down to the landing at the foot of the balcony stairs, and from this landing a short, broad flight of steps lead straight down into the same alley just men-tioned!

And just to the left of the orchestra as they sit in line before you is another double door-way through which one can pass to another stairway a few feet beyond which leads down into the same alley.

These six exits from the lower floor will be open during the entire performance and at each exit a special watchman will be stationed to see that the exits are kept open and the stairways kept clear.

The five windows which open on the portico The five windows which open on the portico from the vestibule at the front of the house will also be kept open and closely watched. Now look up in the balcony from the stage. On your right, at the back of the theater, a big doorway opens upon a wide landing from which one goes down two short flights of steps into the first vestibule, thence through the windows to the portico, on down the steps of the main entrance to Marietta street. On your left at the back of the house another large doorway opens upon two short flights leading down into the

GATHERED TO HIS FATHERS. The Life and Services of Rev. Jesse Lamberth.

Rome. Ga., January 19.—[Special.]—The burial of Rev. Jesse Lamberth took place here yesterday in the old cemetery beside his child, who was buried there fifty-two years ago, when Rome was a struggling settlement of half a dozen families. Jesse Lamberth was born November 19, 1810. in Walton county, Georgia. As a young man he was an Indian trader, and buying his supplies in Augusta and Macon, traveled all over the trackiess forests of north Georgia disposing of his wares to the red men. In 1833 or earlier he came to the junction of the Etowah and Oostanaula rivers. He liked the country, and a year later assisted in laying off the city. In 1835 on June 14, he moved his family to Rome. He started here as a merchant, opening his store just below the Buena Vista house. There were only five or six families then settled in the village, little Rome. But they had brave hearts and were hopeful that, in the future a great city would rise from the promising spot they had selected. The people showed their confidence in Mr. Lamberth by electing him to the legislature in 1837. As a representative of the country, he introduced a number of bills, the most important of which was to run a dito the legislature in 1837. As a representative of the county, he introduced a number of bills, the most important of which was to run a dividing line laying off the new county of Chattoga, which then formed a part of Floyd county. After returning home he assisted in the survey of the line between the two counties. Afterward Mr. Lamberth was elected in 1839 clerk of the old time inferior court, which position he held until 1852, in this year the office of ordinary having been created. He was then elected to the position of ordinary of Floyd county. He held this position until 1868 when under the law he could hold no public office until his disabilities were removed by the United States government. During the war Mr. Lamberth was commissary in Rome for provisions allowed to the wives of those who had been killed in battle. When the federals came to Rome Mr. Lamberth was taken a prisoner but was released on parole. In 1868 Mr. H. J. Johney, the present critians.

came to Rome Mr. Lamberth was taken a prisoner but was released on parole. In 1868 Mr. H. J. Johnson, the present ordinary of Floyd county, was elected, and for two years thereafter Mr. Lamberth served as clerk in the office. The deceased since that date has lived quietly and peacefully in his present home on West First street. In April, 1884, he was smitten with a stroke of paralysis. In November of the same year a second stroke followed. Since the last named stroke Mr. Lamberth has been closely contined to his house, only being seen in public when an election of great interest took place. On these occasions he was taken to the polls in a carriage.

In his position as ordinary and as a minister of the gospel Mr. Lamberth has performed more marriages than any man in the state of Georgia or perhaps in the south. On February 8, 1876 when he married his grandson, Mr. T. Claude Langston, he announced that it was the 3,303d marriage ceremony he had performed the 3,303d marriage ceremony he had per

HE SHAVED BOOTH'S PA. Barber Ingliss Receives a Call From Booth

From the Savannah, Ga., News. "Aye, aye, sir. Walk in gentlemen. Boy, take the gentlemen's hats. Come, get a move on you," said old man William Ingliss, the Screven house barber, yesterday, as two distingue individuals entered his place. "Have seats, gentlemen. What can I—— Well, if here aint Mr. Barrett. Howdy, Mr. Barrett." here aint Mr. Barrett. Howdy, Mr. Barrett. 'A cordial handshake ensued between the barber and one of the gentlemen, who was Mr. Lawrence Barrett. That gentleman waved a declination of the invitations to seats from a half dozen barbers. He said that Inglis was an old friend who had served him on many occasions, and that he had merely come in to see him. Turning, he introduced his companion, Mr. Edwin Booth. "Well, I declare, Mr. Booth, I'm proud to meet you," said the old barger, with the peduliar obeisance of the old-time negro, which is seldom seen nowadays. "I used to shave your pa over fifty years ago."

The remark evidently pleased the actor, for he chatted pleasantly with the old man for several minutes before the two took teeir departure.

The barber was very proud of the visit. It The barber was very proud of the visit. It was probably the only call the two tragedians made in the city. And his eyes sparkled and his parenthetical legs nearly danced as he condescendingly told the crowd of barbers.

"Yes, yes, I used to shave that man's pa away back yonder in '34, when I was a boy, working in Charleston. He used to come there and spend weeks at a time. There ain't such actors nowadays as he was. Why, I saw him one night, when he was playing 'Richard the one night, when he was playing 'Richard the Third, 'run 'Richmond' off the stage twice.'' It will be several days before the old man's proud step will resume the normal waddle.

He Saved the Diamonds. From the London Globe.

A story from the diamond fields. A Kaffle A story from the diamond fields. A Kaffic was suspected of being in possession of uncut diamonds, and was pursued by the officers of the law. When they came up with him he had just shot one of his oxen. Then they proceeded to search him. They ransacked his scanty clothing, they combed his wooly head, they tried all the usual processes, but never a diamond did they find, and finally they had to retire discomfitted. Then the Kaffir protected to pick out from the dead ox's carcass all the diamonds with which his gun had been loaded, and which he had fired into the unfortunate beast when he saw the officers approaching.

PREMIUM.

AN EXCELLENT PREMIUM.

THE CONSTITUTION GUN is now offered as a premium with the Daily. High prices at an end. Everybody can now read and shoot if they desire. THE CONSTITUTION has been clubbing a $24 Gan with its Weekly edition for the past three years, and has sold hundreds of them. We have been prevailed upon to club it with the Daily, and have decided to do so. The gun we offer is a DOUBLE-BARRELLED SHOT GUN And is of a very superior make. It is imported especially for us, and is warranted by the manufacturers. It is one of the best guns ever made, and in many respects superior to those usually sold for $30. We will club it with THE DAILY CONSTITUTION ONE YEAR FOR $20.00.

Now, remember, you get both the gun and the Daily one year for about what you would have to pay retail dealers for the gun alone. It is a double-barrelled breech-loader, of handsome finish, with olied walnut stock, pistol grip, and tested steel barrels. It weighs a trifle over seven pounds, and is a true shooter. We have the gun at our office and will be glad to show it to those who may call. We have received hundreds of certificates, from Texas to Virginia, telling of its merits. Now, don't you want one? If so, come in at once and subscribe for the Daily and you can get the gun at a reduced price. If you are already a subscriber, we will let you have the gun at $10. This is a good chance for you. Call at business office and see the gun.

Advecates of lower prices also received aid from a lack of support in many stocks, Gould projectics especially yielding very rendily to the pra ure brought against them. Traders of course were ranged on the bear side and were active in selling the list throughout the day. The first attack was on Missouri Pacific, St. Paul, Reading and Fort Missouri Pacific, St. Paul, Reading and Fort th and Denver, and a large line of the first thre stocks was sold. The strength of Reading was remarkable under the circumstances and there was a rumor a new pool had been formed and buying stock sold. The market was, however, as limited in its scope as at any time during the present de-pression, being for the most part confined to the walls of the stock exchange, the outside interest doing little or nothing. The anneuncement of the final signing of the Oregon Navigation leave had ace in checking the decline, its effect eing specially noticeable in Union Pacific, but sell quickly renewed and the improven ing was quickly renewed and the improvement amounted to very little. The opening was quiet but weak and attacks upon Reading and Gould stocks soon infused life into trading, while prices fell away rapidly. Fort Worth and Denver and Missouri Facilic were next taken in hand, and though the general list reacted at intervals upward movements were feeble and gave the market at times a feverish appearance. There was a period of duitness after 12 o'clock which les ed until nearly 2 n. m. but the attack was reneved Reading before 2 p. m., but the attack was renewed, Reading being again a point of attack. This was followed by a partial reaction in the last hour, but the close was dull and again weak, at or near the lowest prices reached. The business of the day was 248,000 shares. NEW YORK, January 19—C. L. Green & Co. in their report on cotton futures today, say: Cotton certificates have not formed much of a market today, but the undertone was comparatively steady through-out, and valuations have inclined toward a higher out, and valuations have inclined toward a higher range. There did not appear to be any special effort to built the position, but the condition of small receipts unquestionably created a nervous tone, and not only led to a very cautious offering but induced a great many of the small shorts to cover. In brief, while the demand was only fair, there seemed to be nothing through which the position could be assailed, and the cost was supported without much difficulty. The gain emonated to some five points, with the close about steady all round and offerings limited.

NEW YORK, January 19—(Special.)—From Hubbard, Price & Co., through John S. Ernest: Livetpool has been very dull today. Our cables say that the bears have been trying their utmoit to burst the market to influence quotations here, but it closes with a much better feeling on the probability of a rise tomorrow, unless adverse influences affect it in the morning. The opening with us was at a slight decline, but the trading, though small, showed early in the day a tendency to improve prices, and up ito the close the market continued hardening, realizing the lest prices late for the day. No urging was needed, and buying to influence prices cannot be traced to any of the large operators, who have seemingly been content to let the improvement, which appeared healthy, go on without sid. Business has been very light—SLSO bales, and the slight realizing of profits furnished offerings for buyers at the advancing figures. The anticipated smallness of por receipts and the promise of a very moderate interior movement brought some buyers into the market, which seems, by its firmness of tone, to have better prices in store. Operators are rather holding aloof, but will buy if the advance appears to be sustained. New Orleans receipts today may have an influence upon Lirol, and this is somewhat expected by the room

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitution. CHICAGO, January 19—The sparkle and fizz which were the features of the opening market yesterday were lacking today. All of the markets opened quiet, the excitement had evidently died out in pork, as the opening price for May was $14.40 precisely where it closed. From this price it advanced to $14.42\infty $14.45, but by 10.30 o'clock it had reacted to $14.20. There was not much selling pressure at once of outside orders seemed to have more to do with the order. at once of outside orders seemed to have more to do with the decline than the bear operations. One sale of 1,000 barrels of May pork was made at $14.25, the lowest price of the season, but most of the trading was unimportant and of a scalping nature.

Trading in lard and ribs was smaller in volume and of character, prices ranging within 56.10c range. Toward the close of the season prices firmed up considerably, May pork closing at $14.50; May lard at 7.5566.7.57% and May short ribs at 7.77%.

Both coun and wheat opened a trifle firmer. May Both corn and wheat opened a trifle firmer, May wheat started at $3\infty 683\lambda. Little interest was developed in the first hour and at the end of the hour the pit was almost deserted. It became evident as the day advanced that grain values would go lower. Wheat and corn were both raided at times by local operators and there was considerable selling and cancelling of orders on country account. May wheat was forced down to $22408224 shortly before propound deced at $2240824 wheat was forced down to $2\cdot 62\cdot 4 \text{ shortly be ore noon and closed at $2\cdot 62\cdot 62 markets and sold out again. May sold down to 324

Several Interesting Facts.

On the 12th of March, 1866, the governor approved an act authorizing the governor to advertise sixty days in newspapers in Macon and Augusta for proposals to furnish artificial arms and legs to disabled or indigent soldiers. The limbs were to be delivered at some central point. Competitors were to send samples to Milledgeville, and the contract was to be awarded to the lowest bidder. Applicants for the artificial arm or leg were compelled to precure an order from the ordinary of his count. The application was required to contain a personal description of the applicant, with agreed to the lowest bidder. Applicant, with agreed to the applicant of the applicant, with agreed to the completent, and filled in office of critical arm or to by applicant, and filled in office of the comptroller-general of state, where was required to keep a record of the mame and a synopsis of the facts. When the applicant receipted for the limb the receipt was returned to the comptroller-general, and was a order on the treasurer.

On the 15th of December, 1866, an act was passed furnishing free transportation to disabled soldiers to and from points where it was necessary to get their limbs, the ordinary furnishing a certificate which was accepted by the railroads as an order on the state. On the 18th of the same month and year the legislature went still further, and gave to all indigent maimed soldiers under thirty years of age the right to be educated either in the university of Georgia, Mercer university, Emory college, Oglethoape college or Bowdom college free of charges for tuition, books, board and clothing, and the governor was authorized, if the funds in the treasury were not sufficient, to issue bonds to an amount sufficient for the purposes of the act, provided the state did not pay more than $300 per capita per annum. This was to educate the beneficiaries to become teachers.

An act was passed on the 3rd of March, 1875, making it the duty of each ordinary in the state before the county tax was levied, upon the application and proof of any confederate soldier who had lost both eyes, or two limbs, to levy a special tax of $100 for each applicant, the money to be collected by the tax collector and paid by him to the applicant. The act specified that the applicant must swear that he "did not own more than $1.000 of taxable property." so, and the journals of the house show that numbers availed themselves of its provisions. The constitution adopted in 1877, in enumerating the powers of taxation and the purposes for which they were to be exercised over the whole state, in the last clause of paragraph 1, section 1 of article 7 says: "To supply the soldiers who lost a limb, or limbs, in the military service of the Confederate States with substantial artificial limbs during life."

The legislature of 1872, in conformity with the constitution, passed an act declaring—"Any person now a bona fide resident of this state who enlisted in the military service of the confederate states or of this state, who, while engaged in said military service, lost a limb or limbs, may furnish to the governor proof that such applicant has supplied himself with such needed artificial limb or limbs, and the governor, on reception of such proof is hereby authorized to draw his warrant on the treasurer of the state in favor of such applicant. For the less of a leg extending above the knee $100; not extending above the lebow $40. Said amounts were allowed to applicants in lieu of the limbs. The act of 1879 was amended in September, 1881, by providing that "in all cases where a person entered the service of the state of Georgia, or of the confederate states, being at the time of enlistment a citizen of Georgia, who lost a leg or an arm in such service, but who was a non-resident at the time of the passage of the act, but has since become $\frac{1}{2}$ bona fide citizen of Georgia, he shall be entitled to participate fully in the benefits of the act."

On the 24th of December, 1884, the legislature passed an act providing that any person now a bona fide resident. "who lost a limb or limbs," or who "received wounds which afterwards caused the loss of a limb or limbs," was entitled to the provision.

CONSTRUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

The legislature in 1885 passed an amendment to paragraph I, section I, article 7 of the constitution, by adding "and to make suitable provision for such confederate soldiers as may have been permanently injured in such service." This was submitted to popular vote on October 6th. 1886, and was adopted by a vote of 63,063 yeas to 1,955 nays. Under this amendment to the constitution the legislature of 1886-7 passed a new act, repealing all previous acts, by which it is provided: "That any person who enlisted in the military service of the confederate states or of this state during the civil war between the states of the United States, who was a citizen of this state on the 26th of October, 1886, who lost a limb or limbs while engaged in such military service, occasioned by reason of such service, or who may have thus received wounds which afterwards caused the loss of a limb or limbs, or who may have been permanently injured while in said service, and who may be a bona fide citizen of the state at the time of making the application, shall be entitled to receive once a year, for total loss of sight, $100; loss of one eye, $15; total or partial loss of hearing whereby applicant is permanently disabled from the ordinary manuel wood the knee, $25; loss of the body not before mentioned whereby the applicant has been rendered permanently and practically incompetent for the performance of the ordinary manuel overcious acts are not entitled to the benefits under this act until the time for which said benefits were given has expired.

Over 100 applications were disallowed for the reason that the proof submitted did not come up to the requirements of the law.

The sufferings arising from the hardships of a soldier's life are vividly brought out in the character of the wounds and condition of many of the applicants.

The number wounded in the arm preponderates.

Of the applicants paid this year twelve had lost both eyes and forty-five only one eye.

One man had one eye shot out and his skull fractured, producing epilepsy. He fell in the fire and burned out the other eye.

Another while on the march and passing around a mud hole had an eye knocked out by a bush on the side of the road.

One man was in the explosion of the magazine in Fort Sumter, and had both his right arm and leg broken in three places, his skull fractured, and his eyesight and hearing injured.

One man at Jonesboro got mashed by a bundle of tent poles falling on him, and another had his hand mashed while closing a port hole at Fort Sumter.

While obstructing the river below Savannah one man was injured by rocks falling on him. Several suffered from rheumatism, and while marching had their legs to break under them.

So far only two applications believed to be fraudulent have been discovered, viz.: S. E. Easar, of Bibb county, and David Gann, of Fulton.

A man came into the executive office the other day, and, crooking one finger, said earnestly to Captain Harrison, "What do you give for a hog bite?" and then retired with a broad smile on his face.

Both times the soldier said he could see him. He then required the applicant to hold up one arm and work it, and then the other, and dismissed him with "you won't get a blessed ceut."

THE AMOUNT PAID OUT.

The amount paid out this year will not fall far short of $14,000. Since 1866. Georgia has paid for this purpose over $500,000.

Mr. Smith and a Miss Smith in the holy bonds of matrimony yesterday at the parsonage. The marriage was somewhat romantic. About ten o'clock yesterday morning a young gentleman, accompanied by a young lady, walked into Ordinary Calhoun's office. The young man was attired in an every day business suit, over which was worn a heavy, handsome ulster. An incipient mustache, which a barber had artistically painted, adorned his upper lip. The young lady was wearing a handsome traveling suit with hat to match, and wore a pleasant smile about her mouth.

"And where's Washington street?" asked 'Mr. and Miss Smith in the same breath.

"Then you are strangers in the city?"

"Yes, I'm from Tennessee and the lady is from Kentucky," said the groom-elect.

Judge Calhoun drew out his city map and compass and showed them where Dr. Strickler resided. Then they left the courthouse and went direct to the minister's residence. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Smith went to the union depot, where they remained until the Richmond and Danville train left. Upon that train they left the city. They were both quite young, and there is an air of mystery as well as romance about the marriage.

The match game that has been looked forward to with so much interest, especially to the boys, will take place tomorrow (Saturday) at 9:30 o'clock, at the baseball park. The game will last an hour and a half, and if all that can spare the time will come out and witness the game they will be fully repaid. It is thought the Edgewood team will outweigh the town boys, but both clubs are in fine order and the game will be a good one. The Edgewood team, consisting of Crawford, Harralson, Hightower, Purse, Jones H., Jones S., Howard, Wienmeister, Peacock, White and Hulsey, will be met by a committee and escorted to the ball ground, where they will be met by Jones L., Hemphill, Kimball, Jones A., Lawshe, Burbank, McRathburn, Youngblood, Jones W., Glenn and Grady.

GONE WEST

To Reform and Grow Up With the Country—He Will Do It.

Eugene Couch, the young man who made an ineffectual effort a few days ago to suicide, left the city yesterday. He was equipped with a railroad ticket to Kansas City, and before leaving promised his friends to redeem himself. Young Couch is a skilled railroad man, and can do well anywhere. He is yet young, and his friends believe that he will observe the promise he has made.

and Remains Out All Night.

The criminal court met at nine o'clock yesterday morning, Judge Richard H. Clark presiding. The day was occupied in hearing arguments in the case of the state against Eibert Ware, indicted for murder.

The juror had spent the night in a comfortable room in the Metropolitan hotel, and had been given a good breakfast before coming to the courthouse, so that when they took their accustomed sears they seemed as fresh as when accessioned seats they seemed as fresh as when they began their duties last Tuesday morning. Elbert Ware was in the same seat he has occupied all through the trial, and he showed no emotion. But his mother was visibly af-fected. There was a very large crowd in the court com, the galleries being crowded with ne-

"Gentlemen, proceed with your arguments," remarked Judge Clark, as he glanced at his watch. It was a few minutes after 3 o'clock. Mr. W. J. Abbott made the opening argument for the prosecution. He spoke upward of one hour.

Mr. T. A. Hanamond followed in a two hours' argument for the defense.

Colonel Nat J. Hammond began his argument at 12 o'clock. At 1 o'clock the court took a recess till 2 o'clock, when he resumed his argument, and spoke until 4:20.

Solicitor-General Hill began his argument at 4:20 o'clock and spoke over two hours.

Judge Clark charged the jury fully as to the law.

law.

It was near 7 o'clock when the jurers took the record and went into their consultation room. An hour later Judge Clark received a message from Mr. Hancock, one of the jurers, saying that he was ill. The jury was summoned into the court. Mr. Hancock told the court that it would be necessary for him to lie down, and the judge instructed the sheriff to conduct the jurers to a hotel and keep them together until 9 o'clock this morning.

It is understood that up to midnight no verdict had been agreed on.

A MATTER OF DOLLARS

Is What the Board of Aldermen Had Up Yesterday. COUNCIL APPORTIONMENTS TORN UP.

Public Buildings and Grounds Apper tionments Increased to $40,000—Other Apportionments Decreased.

The board of aldermen convened in regular session yesterday morning in the mayor's of-fice. There were present in addition to Mayor Cooper, Aldermen Collier, Hemphill, Mecaslin, Howelf and Haas.

The session was strictly business. The apportionments made by the general council during the regular session last Monday was taken up and badly torn to pieces. The apportionment to water works and that to public schools, as well as that to gas, was diminished, while the apportionment to public buildings and grounds was largely increased. The board began work by taking $20,000 from the $70,000 given to water works. Then $5,000 was taken from the $80,000 given to public schools, and $5,000 from the $80,000 apportioned to lamps and gas. The $30,000 and the two $5,000 were then lumped and the $40,000 was added to the $6,000 set aside for public buildings and grounds. After completing the changes the board presented the following sheet: Paving and curbing..... ire department..... Paupers and relief... amps and gas ... Vaterworks....

Onungent. 67,895.61, there goes to the fourth ward school, $5,625; to bonds, $5,000, and to netes for the waterworks filter, $25,300, leaving $31,900.61 as the actual contingent fund.

The board concurred in the action of the council in setting aside $3,750 for Windsor street paving, $700 for Capitol place paving, and $4,000 for Rawson street paving. The board also concurred in giving $100 to grading Richardson street, and to paying $3,200 to Mr. Wells for his land near the city.

The action of the board will be communicated to the general council at its next regular

The action of the board will be communicated to the general council at its next regular meeting, and some lively work may be expected. The committee from whom money was taken to add to the public building fund are greatly displeased and will fight a concurrence by the council. During the afternoon the matter was pretty freely discussed, and unless some one backs down the next meeting of council will be one of much talk and little work. The waterworks committee, from which $20,000 was taken, has for its chairman Mr. L. B. Nelson. Mr. Nelson has been at the head of that committee for one year and is thoroughly conversant with its needs. When he heard that that board had sliced off $20,000, nearly one-half his fund, he raised his hat and scratched his head, saying:

rly one-half his fund, he raised his had and arched his head, saying: Well, I declare."

And what are you going to do about it?" Why, I am going to fight it."

How?"
Why, when the matter comes up before the meil I shall do all I can to prevent the body a concurring with the board. Where did board put that money?"
Gave it to public buildings and grounds."

"Gave it to public buildings and grounds."
"Gave it to public buildings and grounds."
"What does Howell want with it?"
"Give it up. But what did your committee ant with $70,000."
"Well, to tell the truth, we did not need $70,000, but we need a great deal more than the $40,000 which the board has left us." cause it will require $38,000 about to dey our actual expenses."

Then why do you want more?"
"To extend the main and increase the facilis for fighting fire as well as supply more drinking water."

"Then how much do you want?"
"I can't say. But the board of water commissioners will meet before the council meets and decide what we must have." and deride what we must have."

Mr. Nelson is not the only gentleman troubled about the $46,000 given to public buildings and grounds. Mr. Woodward, chairman of the gas committee, is worried and chewing the ends of his mustache. Five thousand were taken from his department and that $5,000 disturbs him.

"Why," said he, "twenty-five thousand dollars wen't light, the town. Let there be light.

lars wen't light the town. Let there be ligh lars won't light the town. Let there be light, you know, and let there be money to make that light. That's my desire."

"Yes, but you don't always get your desires, do you?"

"Not every time. But then I guess the council will have another whack at this before the thing is settled."

"Then what?"

"Well, there may be two balance sheets, you know. However, I am glad that the board agreed with the council in authorizing the gas contract to be let to the lowest bidder."

The other department which was decreased sgreet with the council in authorizing the gas contract to be let to the lowest bidder."

The other department which was decreased for the benefit of the public buildings and grounds was the public schools. Mr. Hemphill is chairman of that committee and is devoted to the schools. When asked for his opinion as to the changes, he remarked:

"All's well that ends well."

The public buildings and grounds department which grew so fut at the expense of the other three departments, has Mr.:Howell, of the board of aldermen, at its head. The department has never had so much money assigned to it before, and Mr. Howell's request for the amount has created an anxiety to know what surprise the alderman has in store for the public.

"What can it be?" asked a gentleman in the city clerk's office yesterday.

"Maybe he wants to build a city hall," remarked Clerk Goldsmith, with a knowing wink at Jakie Morris.

"But $46,000 won't build a city hall,"

"But $46,000 won't build a city hall."

"Maybe he wants to buy the lot this year and add to the fund year by year until he secures all that is necessary." and to the tank year by year until he secures all that is necessary."

Mr. Howell, the chairman of the committee however, does not appear to know as much about the matter as Mr. Goldsmith. When asked what he wanted with the money, he answered:

"I don't know."

"But give me an idea."
"I have none."
"None? What?"
"Ideas."

The question will be adjusted on the first Monday in February. There is more experience, time and brain work represented in the preparation of Hood's Sarsaparilla than in any other medicine. It is this which makes Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar.

The lecture was delivered yesterday moraing. At noon the visitors repaired to the new coffin factory, which is situated at the corner of Markham and Mangum' streets, to attend the formal opening of that institution. After a thorough examination of the building had been made, a handsome lunch was spread, and each one of the guests was an active director in conducting the funeral of the viands set out before them.

Late in the evening the visitors let the city for their respective homes.

Professor Clarke left last night for Minneapolis, where he delivers a course of lectures. From there he goes to Texas.

THE EVILS OF REPUBLICAN RUL

Property Heid Unlawfully By the Gove ment—Unity in the Party Demanded. WASHINGTON, January 20.—[Special. Meeting Judge Stewart this morning I inqui his opinion of the democratic party.

He expressed himself as hopeful of the speed of the party in 1888 but at the same ti stated that he feared many of the people with depart of the party in the democratic the dense the democratic the dense of the people with the democratic the dense of the democratic the dense of the people with the dense of the dense o

"And an illustration," said he, "of this danger this now in the treasury about $6,000,000 rafrom the said of property captured and tain the south during and immediately after war. Notwithstanding that the supreme chas decided the government holds this perty in trust for the rightful owners the and have decided that the presidents' proclation of amnesty relieved persons from the poor for the war. Yet, on the part of the reputans, there seems to be a fixed determinat based upon what they claim to be an equi cans, there seems to be a fixed determinate based upon what they claim to be an equivalent this money should not be restored, cause the people of the south caused the wand, therefore, this money should be used defraying the expenses of the same, and the should not be returned to the parties wherever the way taken."

Property was taken."

He then stated that he, Mr. Culberson
Texas, and others, are engaged in preparin bill to allow the owners of this money to go fore a court of claims and establish their r to it. He greatly feared whether a republivote could be procured in favor of it. He vote could be procured in favor of it. He sisted that, in addition to this, it is quevident that if the Irepublican party restored to power they would seek, in a lameasure, to defeat appropriations for purpose of erecting public buildings and of ing rivers in the south; that the would have upon the slightest pretext, tions in the south investigated and that would seek to foster monopolies and the gressiveness of capital against the interes
